

taken a Let's Make a Deal approach to Medicare reform. They've given us door No. 1, door No. 2, and door No. 3, but they want to pass the buck on who makes the painful choices.

Regardless, it's clear that seniors will be stuck with the booby prizes. Secret documents from the House Budget Committee show that the Republican plan would force seniors to pay more in deductibles, premiums, and copayments.

According to House budget committee documents, options the GOP has proposed would:

Increase the deductible that beneficiaries must pay for doctors' services before Medicare coverage begins. The annual deductible, now $100, would be raised to $150.

Nearly double the monthly $46 premium to $84 by the year 2002. That would be an increase of $456 a year for seniors—just in increased monthly premiums.

Charge co-payments of 20 percent for home health care and laboratory tests.

Republicans call these extra costs for seniors part of the fair shared sacrifice needed to balance the budget. But there's nothing fair and nothing shared about this sacrifice. All the sacrifice will come from seniors, many on fixed incomes who simply can't afford these extra costs. And the benefits go primarily to the wealthy in the form of tax cuts.

It's no wonder that Republican Representative GEORGE RADANOVICH of California said the following: "If we had come out with this budget as our Contract, they wouldn't have voted us in."

Amazingly, while some Republicans are honest enough to admit that balancing the budget will be painful, Speaker GINGRICH claims that $283 billion in Medicare cuts will be painless. The Speaker wants to have it both ways: He claims that the Republican plan saves money and balances the budget, and in the same breath he also claims that this plan increases Medicare spending. These claims beg a simple question: If the Republicans aren't cutting Medicare, then where are the savings?

True, overall Medicare spending in the year 2002 will be more than it is today. But the spending level in the Republican plan falls woefully short of keeping pace with health care inflation or with increased enrollment in the program. The consequence of the Republican plan will be reduced benefits, higher costs, or both. Republicans know this is the case and it's time to come clean with the American people.

These drastic cuts in Medicare have come as a surprise to many Americans. Even to many Americans who voted in the new Republican majority in 1994. Remember the GOP "Contract With America"? Medicare cuts weren't included in the Republican blueprint.

But now that the Republicans have given away all the goodies of the Contract in the first 100 days, they need to find someone to pay for them. And seniors on Medicare are a convenient target. That's what this is all about.

Promises made, promises kept—that's been the Republican rallying call of late. But it seems that Republicans have forgotten our solemn promises to America's seniors.
